Disney THE BFG Gobblefunk Word Search

Gobblefunk is the language created by Roald Dahl to give the BFG his unique voice. It is comprised of silly words that are similar to words found in the English language and are used when ordinary words just won't do.

The filmmakers were initially concerned that the words would make the characters' dialogue too confusing for the audience to understand. "We didn't want it to stop people from listening and trying to understand a line of dialogue because they just didn't get it," explains executive producer Kathleen Kennedy, "But after hearing how Mark Rylance spoke it, we all wanted more."

The actor wanted more of the language as well, and he wanted to repeat the words so that they actually became part of his character's strict vernacular. "He wasn't just pulling things out of his hat," says Rylance. "The BFG has words that he uses for certain things and he repeats them in his life."
